

Hanging: Influence for Good or Barbarism?

OTTAWA (CP)—A Toronto lawyer who has twice served as foreman of juries hearing murder trials said Friday that if animals were slaughtered in Canada the way convicted murderers are executed, there would be almost a revolution.

Frank McGee (P.C. York Scarborough) made the statement in the Commons in direct opposition to the view of fellow Progressive Conservative A. DeB. McPhillips, Victoria.

Also a lawyer, as both defence counsel and crown prosecutor at murder trials, Mr. McGee said "the hangman is an influence for good."

Both were speaking in debate on a proposal by Harold Winch (C.F. Vancouver East) that capital punishment be abolished. It was discussed through most of an hour for private members' bills and no vote was taken on it.

Mr. McGee, supporting the proposal, said he has found no evidence that hanging persons convicted of murder is a deterrent to murder or protection for police.

He expressed concern that sadistic tendencies of some judges and jurors might play a part in convicting persons charged with murder.

One of the cases on which he served as judge had involved an Italian immigrant. Mr. McGee said a fellow jury member had suggested the man be hanged as an example to other immigrants.

Mr. McGee said he opposes capital punishment because he does not believe the courts can come to a sufficiently absolute conclusion to justify taking a person's life.

Mr. McGee said he opposes capital punishment because he does not believe the courts can come to a sufficiently absolute conclusion to justify taking a person's life.

Some said hanging was degrading. But so was murder. It was only the cold-blooded murderer who ever got convicted by a jury.

Mr. McPhillips got into a heated argument with Mr. Winch by expressing surprise that a member of a group which, he said, once advocated machine-gunning the rich should be sponsoring abolition of "that old British institution of hanging."

Mr. Winch angrily demanded an apology. He said he was a founding member of the CCF group and it had never advocated violence of any kind.

Mr. McPhillips said he hadn't meant that Mr. Winch would do that shooting himself.

Parched Coast
Promised Rain

Weary forest fire fighters received welcome news from the weatherman Friday night—rain for the entire B.C. coast by this afternoon.

Cause is a storm 500 miles out in the Pacific. It remained stationary for days, but has now started moving toward the coast. In addition to showers, it will bring a heavy cloud cover, raising humidity and lowering temperatures.

AS FORGOTTEN WAR FLARES UP

Buttle Lake Fire Base Replaces Burned-Out Camp

New base camp was set up yesterday at head of Buttle Lake replacing one destroyed this week by the leaping forest fire which sent firefighters scurrying for their lives. New contingent of 100 men was being moved to the lake yesterday to join 90 firefighters already

Rebel
Dead
Left

JAKARTA, Indonesia (Reuters)—Rebels are still fighting to the bitter end against government troops in one of the world's most active—and most forgotten—wars.

Just 5½ months after the banner of revolt was raised in Sumatra against President Sukarno, the rebels still battle on the Celebes and part of Sumatra.

BITTERNESS GROWS
The fighting, somewhat lackadaisical during the early stages when government troops scored victories, has become increasingly bitter as the rebels retreat.

In the Celebes, they have resorted to ambush tactics. It took government forces 10 days last month to capture the capital of Manado.

GUERRILLA PRESSURE

While government forces are still fighting the desperate rebel rearguard in the Celebes, guerrilla attacks continue in Sumatra, richest island in the archipelago.

Ten days ago, the rebels were driven out of Bukittinggi, the so-called rebel capital, after a massive all-night assault on the town.

A government statement said the bodies of 187 rebels were laid out in the town square "so that if their relatives recognized them they could be given a decent burial."

The rebellion began as a protest against what the rebels said was Sukarno's tolerant attitude toward Communist elements in the government. Another sore point in the outer islands was that they weren't receiving a fair share of the national wealth.

MILITARY LAW

Under the state of war, Indonesia's 4,000,000 inhabitants have had to learn to live under military law.

In the dimly lit streets of the capital of Jakarta, with an estimated population of 2,500,000, jeeps of heavily-armed military police nightly interrogate passers-by.

OFFICES GUARDED

By day, truckloads of paratroopers pass through the streets. All public buildings are guarded by soldiers with bayoneted rifles. Army troops wearing jungle camouflage march through the main thoroughfares.

Meanwhile, fighting continues to grow more bitter as the area controlled by the rebels dwindles. To date, no accurate estimate of the casualties or damage has been issued.

MP's Adjourn For Princess

OTTAWA (CP)—The Commons will adjourn 90 minutes early today because of the visit of Princess Margaret to the capital.

An informal reception for the Princess is being given by the government in late afternoon.

Tibet
Rises
Up

NEW DELHI (Reuters)—A full-scale revolt on the scale of Hungary flared recently in Communist-ruled Tibet, unconfirmed reports reaching here Friday said.

Centre of the revolt was described as eastern Tibet in the province of Kham. Nepalese newspapers said Tibetan refugees are fleeing in large numbers into Nepal and India.

PEOPLE RISE UP

The Nepalese daily Kalpana reported that the people of Kham, the Khambas and Amchod, had risen against Chinese Communist troops, who had retaliated with large-scale punitive measures. This report was denied by Nepalese Home Minister D. R. Regmi, who said he had no knowledge of Tibetan refugees crossing into Nepal.

NEHRU DELAYS TRIP

But The Times of India linked reports with postponement of Indian Prime Minister Nehru's visit to Lhasa, the Tibetan capital.

The Indian external affairs ministry spokesman here said his ministry had "no information of any recent revolt in Tibet, or any appeals by prominent Tibetan exiles for aid from India."

HUGE DEATH TOLL

The spokesman was commenting on a report in the London Daily Telegraph which said more than 50,000 Chinese and 15,000 Tibetans have been killed in East Tibet.

This report said the revolt has spread into the Chinese province of Sinking and west to the borders of India.

MERCILESS STRUGGLE

More than 300 persons were reported being killed every day in a "merciless struggle" between Chinese occupation forces and Tibetan guerrillas.

No prisoners were being taken by either side in this "Asian Hungary," the London newspaper said.

INDIA WON'T HELP

Appeals to India for help, the newspaper said, have met with no response. Indian officers have told rebel leaders not to indulge in armed uprisings but to use civil disobedience and other forms of non-violent demonstration.

HAMILTON (CP)—A smiling Princess Margaret captured the hearts of thousands Friday in a two-hour visit to this steel city, splashed with sunlight and ceremony.

A crowd of more than 20,000 jammed Civic Stadium to see her present new colors to the Highland Light Infantry of Canada, a Galt, Ont., militia unit of which she is colonel-in-chief.

Fresh and cool-looking despite temperatures in the high 70s, the Princess wore an almost constant smile from the time of her late afternoon arrival from Niagara Falls until her departure two hours and 10 minutes later for Ottawa.

She left the station concourse for her train sniffing at a pink carnation that matched her dress. State Secretary Ellen Fairclough, who, with Mayor

Lloyd Jackson, welcomed her and said goodbye, said it was one of a handful of flowers thrown into the royal car by someone at the roadside.

The presentation of the Queen's and Regimental colors to the HLIC highlighted her visit here.

Shortly after the Princess' arrival in the stadium, the cheers drowned out drill orders and one of the four guard groups muffed a present-arms order. They recovered quickly.

During her drive several cries of "hello Maggie" were heard from the crowd.

IMPRESSED BY WARMTH

The Princess told Mayor Jackson she didn't particularly like the name but he said she was impressed by the warmth of the reception.

Earlier, at Niagara Falls, the Princess outdrew the thundering falls.

Police Chief Cecil Pay estimated that 100,000 more persons than on a normal mid-summer day flocked into the honeymoon city to welcome the Princess on her 4½-hour visit.

VANCOUVER (CP)—Stefan S. Sorokin, spiritual guide of the Sons of Freedom Doukhobors, has advised the sect in a 5,000-word letter to go to the Soviet Union while Russia will still accept them.

His letter, written in Russian and translated by Joe Podovinski of Hilliers, B.C., asked the government and people of Canada to let the Doukhobites go "in a peaceful and good way... since they are undesired in Canada and no place is available for them."

ROSEMead, Calif. (UPI)—An expectant mother and her three children, one a five-year-old polio victim, were evicted from their home into the street Thursday night.

When sheriff's deputies arrived yesterday, they found the family sitting in an old car in front of the house, with an electric extension cord being used to maintain the stricken boy's respirator.

Mrs. Joyce Hart, 25, expecting a fourth child later this month, told police she and her husband, David Eugene Hart, also 25, had separated a month ago. She said she had since sold her clothes "to feed the babies."

Fish Strike

Last ditch attempts to avert a strike of 5,500 B.C. salmon fishermen may be held Tuesday in a meeting between the United Fishermen and Allied Workers' Union and the B.C. Fisheries Association.

The union has voted to strike Aug. 9, said secretary Homer Stevens, and any agreement must be reached by Wednesday to enable the union to notify members to cancel the strike.

A meeting held yesterday failed to find a solution to the dispute, he said. The union has refused to amend its demands until the association withdraws any suggestion of price cuts.

"We are not prepared to moderate our demands," Mr. Stevens said. "We have refused to bargain until they take price cuts off the table."

B.C. to Preserve
Barkerville Ghosts

British Columbia's most famous ghost town, the Cariboo gold rush centre of Barkerville, will be restored by the provincial government as a permanent tourist attraction, it was announced Friday.

About $75,000 has been made available to the B.C. Centennial Committee for initial steps. The work will continue for two or three years.

A hard-surfaced road will be laid into the old town.

RUNNING a Better Business Bureau isn't the job of a Chamber of Commerce, says Hugh Stephen, president of the Victoria chamber.

He points out that a Better Business Bureau, like a credit bureau, is a profit-making enterprise. It is a costly operation to run.

Money to run the BBB is provided by merchants of the town. But the Better Business Bureau, a nationwide organization which holds a copyright on the name, won't move into a town unless it considers that enough business exists there to pay its way.

So far, the BBB has steadfastly refused to move into Victoria. The organization in the town to keep a bureau afloat. They could be wrong. But no one has yet been able to persuade them otherwise.

Since two-thirds of Victoria merchants won't join the Chamber of Commerce, chances of signing up enough supporters for a bureau are none too bright.

Lacks Money, Staff

The chamber has announced several times that it is not in a position to provide better business bureau service. It hasn't enough money or personnel.

It isn't sanctioned by the constitution and bylaws of the chamber. Mr. Stephen points out. BBB service is purely a retail matter. Why should manufacturers and shipping men, in the chamber, for example, subsidize a service of that kind?

A chamber of commerce that provides advice on the honesty of merchants is on dangerous ground, Mr. Stephen points out.

Legal action for libel might be taken against the employees who issue such advice, and perhaps against the chamber itself.

A Better Business Bureau proper gives its employees legal protection and legal advice, and interchanges information with other bureaux across the country. It is fairly secure from attack.

In spite of all these hazards, Victoria Chamber of Commerce does answer the complaints of people who claim to have been the victim of shady business tricks.

It Can't Do Much

But the chamber can't do much. It can find out whether or not the unethical merchant is a member of the chamber. He seldom is. The chamber gives a certain amount of screening to members before signing them up. If the firm is a member, there will be some words exchanged.

If the offending merchant is not a member, a staff man can call him up and lodge a protest, which sometimes does some good. That's all. Reputable merchants, says Mr. Stephen, would only too happy to see the shady operators rapped on the knuckles because when one man pulls a dubious deal, it gives the whole trade a black eye.

He says that Better Business Bureaux are strictly impartial. However, since they are financed by merchants, I can't help feeling that merchants exert some influence on them.

The best kind of a business bureau I still say, would be one financed by consumers. I would like to see a group of credit unions start one up.

Customer's Views

Here are the views of a customer on the subject. Mrs. E. Wakefield, 1430 Simon Road, writes:

"I hope that your column about the lack of a Better Business Bureau will get some results, because from my experience we are long overdue for one."

"Being a widow and looking a little younger than I am, I seem to be considered an ideal potential victim for some of our rather shady operators. It is pretty tiresome coping with a lot of these characters."

Steelworkers To Vote On Walkout

TORONTO (CP)—A strike vote among the 7,500 Hamilton employees of the Steel Company of Canada will be held at the plant next Tuesday and Wednesday the United Steelworkers of America (U.S.W.) announced Friday.

The union's local 1005 announced the strike vote shortly after the release of a conciliation board report which recommends against wage increases.

A union spokesman said his local's bargaining committee will poll employees in a secret ballot at the plant gates.

The first Arrow made its initial flight on March 25. The first Arrow was reported to have exceeded 1,000 miles an hour in level flight. The plane is said to be able to fly at 1,200 miles an hour or more.

Christmas in August Beats Rising Rates

MILTON-FREEWATER, Ore. (AP)—It was a thrifty teen-ager who brought a big batch of sealed envelopes into the post office here Thursday night.

Fourteen-year-old Denny Steen told the postmaster he was mailing his Christmas cards early so he wouldn't have to pay increased postal rates which went into effect Friday.

Worley Quits Post As Bennett Aide

Ronald Worley, executive assistant to Premier Bennett, yesterday chose the sixth anniversary of Social Credit's rise to power in B.C. to resign his $10,000-a-year job.

RONALD WORLEY
... treasured six years

He said he would take a holiday for two months then go into private business.

Mr. Worley, 38, has been the premier's right-hand man since Social Credit took office Aug. 1, 1952. His sudden resignation came as a surprise.

A former president of the B.C. Young Liberal Association, he said yesterday he would remain a member of the Social Credit party. He also said he had received several offers from private organizations but would not decide where he would go until after a vacation.

In a prepared statement, Mr. Worley said:

"I cannot feel anything but sorry to leave the premier because he has made the past six years most memorable and our friendship will be treasured always."

"I am happy the premier understands that I want to return to private business and this I hope to do after a short vacation."

No mention was made of a possible successor to Mr. Worley.

Baby Badly Scalded By Upset Coffee Pot

An 18-month-old baby pulled a pot of boiling coffee on himself yesterday and suffered second degree burns.

Stephen Paul Schroyen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dalbert Schroyen, 3041 Earl Grey, was in good condition at St. Joseph's Hospital last night. He suffered burns to his abdomen, chest, right arm and neck.

The child was crawling on the kitchen floor about 11:20 a.m., police said. He pulled an electric cord plugged into an outlet in the wall. It was attached to a coffee pot boiling on the stove.

Sun Aids Saanich

Road Work Off To Flying Start

Victoria's fine, sunny weather has given Saanich a flying start on a $130,000 program to widen and improve Shelbourne Street.

Reeve George Chatterton said last night.

Only disadvantage was the dust created by the dry weather, he said. The nuisance was abated with the municipal water truck.

"We hope the work will be completed by Nov. 1," he said. "It is the first step in what we hope will be a long-term road program for the municipality."

Grading of the road surface has almost been completed and the section from Cedar Hill Crossroad to Pear Street has been gravelled.

Curb construction will begin today, Reeve Chatterton added.

GRACEFUL BIRD

The mute swan of Britain's ornamental gardens is supposed to have been brought to England by Richard I from the Crusades.

Council Above Own Laws

Saanich council has been told it can break its own bylaws, Reeve George Chatterton said last night.

The opinion came from municipal solicitor M. Tyrwhitt-Drake after newly-elected councillor Leslie Passmore had challenged the legality of two temporary buildings erected at the side of the Saanich municipal hall to provide more office space.

Coun. Passmore raised the matter at a meeting of the council's public works committee and a motion to seek legal opinion was narrowly adopted.

Reeve Chatterton said last night council had been advised that as council was acting in the public interest and felt the move was the best solution, then it was not bound by by-laws.

Commenting on the opinion, Coun. Passmore last night said he did not think the solicitor's reasoning was sound, but was prepared to accept it as he had pledged when he first raised the matter.

U.S.-Blast
Stirs Anger

HONOLULU (UPI)—Explosion of a nuclear missile in a brilliant flash of blue-white light—possibly above 100 miles at the edge of space—yesterday frightened and angered residents of Hawaii 500 to 1,000 miles away.

Ferry Wage
Negotiations
Set Monday

Company-union negotiations under a federal mediator resume Monday in the Canadian Pacific Railway ferry pay dispute, but not in the same "supercharged atmosphere."

Mediator Eric Taylor, who flew to Vancouver from Toronto early yesterday, told The Daily Colonist he was meeting union and company officials separately yesterday and today.

"Now it can be taken to arbitration, if necessary, and that makes the difference," he added.

A-BOMB FEAR
Some here thought a plane carrying an atomic bomb had crashed and exploded near Honolulu. Some were angry that there had been no public warning of the blast.

It lighted the sky while many residents and tourists still were awake, especially along the Waikiki Beach hotel strip. Many others were awakened by the flash.

Expert sources in Washington said the blast must have been very high, perhaps more than 100 miles, to give the effects described in Hawaii.

NUCLEAR MISSILE?

There was speculation the explosion might have been the first in a series to develop a nuclear missile to be fired against enemy missiles.

Other possibilities were a weapon such as the Nike Hercules or Talon missiles designed to knock down fleets of enemy H-bombers.

Patsy Takemoto Mink, island Democratic legislator, was one who protested against secrecy of the test.

ILL-CONSIDERED

She said there should be more "human consideration" in connection with the tests.

"Whatever the necessity for secrecy might have been," she said, "it seems ill-considered that knowing the explosion would be visible here that the people of Hawaii were kept in full ignorance as to the details."

"I am informed that there was much hysteria expressed by eye-witnesses."

HORRIFIED

Mrs. Charles Dougherty, Memphis, Tenn., saw the flash from her Waikiki hotel.

"It was brighter than daylight," she said, "and it horrified me."

Nine-Year Record Broken

Single-Engine Plane Flies
Non-Stop Manila to Oregon

PENDLETON, Ore. (AP)—Veteran airline pilot Marion (Pat) Boling, 43, touched down here at 12:52 p.m. PDT yesterday in his bright orange, single-engine plane, ending a record non-stop flight of 6,979 miles from Manila.

His unofficial elapsed time was 45 hours and four minutes, for an average speed of about 152 miles an hour.

Boling, near exhaustion but buoyed by the success of his two-day flight from the western Pacific to this northeastern Oregon city, broke the old record for non-stop, unrefueled flight by single-engine planes by more than 2,000 miles.

NINE-YEAR RECORD

The previous mark of 4,957 miles was set in 1949 by the late Capt. Bill Odom on a flight from Honolulu to Teterboro, N.J.

Boling, a pilot for 20 years with United Air Lines, set the record in a Beechcraft Bonanza, a single-engine plane in which Odom made his distance mark.

Boling climbed out on a wing after his plane landed, then jumped down and embraced his wife, Joyce. Their nine-year-old son Kevin also was on hand to greet his father.

Boling said with a tired chuckle that he had "about two or three gallons of gas left" when he landed.

The unprecedented flight was worth $3,140 to the pilot, who had promised all of the proceeds to the Seventh Day Adventists at his home town of Palo Alto, Calif.

Beech Aircraft Corp., of Wichita, Kan., sponsors of the grueling test of man and machine, promised Boling $1,000 for reaching Seattle and $10 more for every mile beyond there.

HOURLY REPORTS

For much of the flight Boling flew in solitary loneliness over wide expanses of the Pacific, unheard from except for hourly position reports.

As he neared the northern British Columbia coast engine trouble developed and he said it "began running rough." But he kept plugging along at reduced speed without giving up.

Over Vancouver Island, Royal Canadian Air Force and U.S. Coast Guard planes intercepted him and flew convoy much of the remaining way.

VANCOUVER (CP)—The International Woodworkers of America charged coast lumber operators Friday with trying to "provoke" rather than avert a large scale and disastrous stoppage of lumber production at this time.

Probe Called To Resolve
Long Lockout

Provincial cabinet yesterday decided to appoint an industrial inquiry commission to end the three-month-old lockout of electricians and plumbers on the mainland.

Labor Minister Lyle Wicks, in letters to both unions and management, said it was necessary that employees be allowed to return to work immediately until the dispute has been settled.

The commission will consist of an employer's nominee, a nominee from management, and a chairman. The chairman will be picked by the two nominees.

The existing dispute in the plumbing and pipefitting industry followed the rejection of a conciliation officer's report and affects some 120 employers and 1,000 plumbers. Time loss commenced April 30.

The electricians' dispute affects about 200 inside wiremen employed upon construction work.

Lindsay 'Reprieves' Bulls

LINDSAY, Ont. (UPI)—Chamber of Commerce announced last night that the "bloodless bullfight" it is sponsoring has been postponed "due to circumstances beyond our control" from the coming weekend until late in August.

It was believed that opponents of the so-called bullfight had prevailed. Church leaders and humane society officials have voiced vigorous protest at the plan to stage the bullfight, despite the assurance of the sponsor that it won't be the real thing.

When the bullfight was planned the chamber said it was not intending to "conduct a public slaughter. We want to give Canadians an opportunity to see the grace, speed and precision of a bullfight, as well as providing them with thrills and excitement they will not soon forget . . . We don't intend to kill, wound, maim or harass any animal."

The matadors were to go into the ring armed only with capes.

The bulls were supposed to be imported from Mexico. However the chamber has not disclosed whether they will arrive.

An Impartial Appraisal

FOLLOWING on the ferry strike and the disastrous forest fire situation a walkout by the woodworkers would be a dismal cap to current events. Premier Bennett is therefore to be commended for the efforts he is making to avoid a strike by IWA members. Perhaps by a further study of the matter a settlement can be reached.

A welcome interval will elapse at least while Mr. Gordon Sloan makes an attempt to reconcile the conflicting arguments. He has been appointed a royal commissioner to hold hearings and investigate the dispute, with a view to finding a formula which may be acceptable to both sides. The promise of a settlement may thus be considered fair.

The operators are opposed to any wage increase this year, on the grounds that neither the industry nor the province can afford higher production costs in the highly competitive world market. This view was sustained by the findings of the conciliation board which dealt with the dispute. For its part the union has offered to take a 5 per cent increase instead of the 10 per cent originally asked for.

Mr. Sloan may not bring to his commission his former prestige as chief justice of the province, but as forestry adviser to the government he is able to sit in a judicial capacity and his temperament and brilliance of mind are of value. No one knows better the wide ramifications of the forest industry, and his many decisions as a royal commissioner in the past were widely respected. If anyone can render a knowledgeable and fair recommendation on the subject it is he, and there is warrant for the premier's confidence that his findings will be accepted.

It is taken for granted that neither the operators nor the union regard a strike with relish; each side has cause to welcome Mr. Sloan's appointment as an impartial appraiser of the situation.

Ineffectual Smoke Bylaw

FOR many years—far too many—the city council has been on the verge of doing something about smoke pollution; but though the nuisance is ever-present and some of the major sources of it plainly in view, not once in all that time has there been a prosecution under the smoke bylaw. There has been a defeatist attitude towards the matter which scarcely encourages compliance by those responsible for the emission of excessive smoke and ash.

This week there was a statement that "stronger teeth" may be put into the bylaw. Does that mean any more than the many other promises and half-promises of action on behalf of the many businesses and individuals to whom excessive and unnecessary smoke is causing severe financial loss and annoyance, or both, through the begriming of buildings and damage to stock and personal effects? It is to be hoped so; but the word "may" affords small hope.

In Victoria smoke pollution is nothing like as extensive as it is in some of the larger cities; but it is a serious problem for all that, causing tens of thousands of dollars' worth of damage annually. There are some industries which have spent large sums of money to eliminate smoke emission or reduce it to a minimum, but certain others have thumbed their noses at the council and all its toothless warnings, and gone on producing soot and ash-laden smoke in billowing clouds.

The experience of such cities as Pittsburgh—at one time perpetually fogged by poisonous smoke but now virtually smoke-free—demonstrates that the emission of heavy smoke is unnecessary.

It has been proved also to be exceedingly wasteful of fuel, and that industries which have introduced properly designed furnaces and heating plants and economic firing practices have saved themselves many times the cost of the change-over.

But there is no case on record that we know of where any appreciable improvement has been achieved by means of appeals and persuasion alone. Those cities which have freed their inhabitants from the nuisance and sometimes perils of excessive smoke have always had to use compulsion and penalties. Seven years of failure under Victoria's smoke bylaw should point the only road to success.

The Defence Dilemma

THE federal government is said to be hoping anxiously for a summit conference that will list disarmament as a priority subject on the agenda. It has cause to be concerned. The price of armaments is becoming back-breaking, and this country simply can't stand the pace. Only some agreement at top levels can ease the ever-increasing burden of hugely expensive military weapons.

It is no wonder the government finds its defence decisions of a crucial nature. One can sympathize with it in its dilemma. The defence budget is limited, and the prospect of raising taxes to meet the ever rising costs is distasteful and politically dangerous. Yet the armed services have legitimate claims for the latest type of weapons, each of them of colossal expense. Where should the defence department spend most of its money?

At least five urgent needs are reported, relating to production of the supersonic CF-105 fighter plane—whose development has already eaten up $400,000,000—the installation of missile bases, construction of nuclear submarines, a fleet of supply ships for the destroyer flotillas, and ground-to-ground and anti-tank missiles for the army. Any one of these would cost a fortune.

Probably all of these needs are imperative and desirable. Yet Canada cannot afford them all, and where the venture involves breaking into untrod paths, like development of new-type weapons, the costs are beyond its reach. Perhaps Canada is attempting to do too much. She is not a major power and it may be a mistake to try to do all things.

For defence this country is linked by choice and necessity with the United States and with Great Britain. Both these nations have developed certain weapons of the types needed. Both have evolved nuclear submarines, for instance. America builds anti-aircraft missiles. There should be no need for Canada to undertake the weapon construction of such close allies. Where weapons can be bought from either Britain or the U.S.A. it would seem the height of wisdom to do so. All three countries will be together in any emergency, with interchange of weapons then forced upon them. Wasteful duplication can surely be avoided. Canada certainly cannot compete on even terms, and purchase instead of development of weapons would permit its defence dollar to go further.

Interpreting the News

Easing the Crisis

By CHARLES M. McCANN
UPI Foreign News Analyst

THE WEEK'S foreign news in review: The revolt in Lebanon, which mushroomed into a grave international crisis, came to a sudden, dramatic end this week.

Gen. Fuad Chehab, non-political, widely respected army chief of staff, was elected president by a landslide vote of both pro-government and rebel members of the chamber of deputies.

Chehab is to succeed President Camille Chamoun, whose attempt to run for re-election caused the rebellion.

As soon as the vote was announced, rebel chieftains ordered a cease-fire. Army and rebel troops, facing each other in the shadow of the parliament building, joyfully fired their weapons into the air.

There were still elements of possible trouble in the situation.

But hope ran high that it might soon be possible to withdraw the 10,000 United States troops who had been sent to Beirut, the capital, in response to Chamoun's plea that the rebels were receiving aid from President Gamal Nasser's United Arab Republic.

The collapse of the rebellion removed all sense of urgency from the negotiations for a "summit" conference on the Middle East.

Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev had demanded the conference on the ground that the landing of American troops in Lebanon, and of British troops in neighboring Jordan, threatened to explode into Third World War.

The summit negotiations continued in a tedious succession of exchanges between the United States, Great Britain and France on one hand and Russia on the other.

The negotiations were marked by bickering which seemed an unhappy augury for any conference.

But it appeared likely that a conference would be held on the Middle Eastern situation as a whole.

The American and British troops were sent to Lebanon and Jordan when a savage, lightning-swift rebellion overthrew King Faisal of Iraq.

Chamoun, Faisal and King Hussein of Jordan were three outstanding friends of the West. They had won the bitter hatred of Nasser because they were obstacles to his aim of making himself master of the Arab world.

It was feared that, with Faisal murdered, both Lebanon and Jordan might, like Iraq, fall into Nasser's sphere of dominance.

The immediate allied problem was to get Chehab into the Lebanese presidential chair in place of Chamoun as soon as possible, and to try to strengthen both Lebanon and Jordan against subversion by pro-Nasser elements.

As for Iraq, all that could be done was to hope that its new leaders would preserve their country's independence and would not join Nasser's United Arab Republic.

China and Formosa

Weak Spot In the UN

(From The Portland Oregonian)

HOW, asks the Soviet Union, can we be expected to discuss a Middle East solution with Chiang Kai-shek?

It's a good question, and there is no realistic answer to it.

For nine years, the Chinese Nationalists have occupied the province of Formosa (Taiwan) and maintained there a provisional seat of government. For the same period, the Communist Chinese have governed the China mainland.

In the Taiwan and Pescadores islands there live about 10,000,000 persons. One hundred miles across the sea, Communist-governed China sprawls over 3,700,000 square miles of Asia with a population of about 600,000,000.

Yet, because the United Nations—upon the insistence of the United States—does not recognize Red China, the Nationalist government headed by Chiang Kai-shek clings to the permanent Big Power seat on the United Nations Security Council awarded to China by the victorious allies after the defeat of Japan and Germany in 1945.

The delegate from Formosa enjoys the same veto power granted to the Soviet Union, United States, Great Britain and France. Such influential nations as Canada may serve their turns on the Security Council, but without such veto authority.

The delegates and governments of many countries, now trading freely with Red China, see little purpose in the American position—especially since Communist Russia is a member in good standing.

There is small disposition among Americans for the United States to recognize the "People's" government of Red China as a legal entity—although there is strong opinion that the United States should join other non-Communist nations in trade with this vast area and population of the world.

Most Americans, unofficial polls have shown, oppose admission of the de facto government of China to the United Nations seat now held by the government in Formosa.

The United Nations would have to resolve legal problems should it grant two seats, one to Red China and one to the Nationalist China—although when the UN was formed the nations, willingly enough, gave the Soviet Union three seats (one, with the veto, to the central government, one to White Russia and one to the Ukraine).

Certainly, there would be adamant opposition to making Red China one of the "Big Five" on the Security Council. Yet a seat should go to a nation, not to the government or political party in control.

Revolutions and seizures of power in other countries in which the new governments were not Communist have been recognized by the United Nations, and the United States, time after time, without undue delay. But not Communist seizures, for it is well recognized that if a third world war comes it will pit the Communist against the non-Communist nations.

The illogical situation of a government in exile being recognized as the spokesman for six hundred million Chinese—even though it is deemed that these are held in bondage—remains, however, a weakness in the United Nations.

It could be resolved should President Chiang Kai-shek resign himself to representative authority over Formosa and the Pescadores, and give up his dream of returning to the mainland. That, however, he will never do.

Reports from Ottawa

ALTHOUGH the Catholic hierarchy in Quebec ruled a decade and a half ago that membership in the CCF is not incompatible with membership in the church, the cause of political socialism has not prospered in French Canada.

So little difference did ecclesiastical clearance make that in the election last spring the CCF got only 45,627 Quebec votes, while the old parties got about a million each. The conclusion is that the CCF's demonstrated inability to make headway in Quebec must be due to factors other than suspicion of socialism by the religious authorities.

While the Conservatives proved that Quebec support isn't essential for victory, nevertheless a party without substantial Quebec support can only pretend to be a national party. And barring an electoral miracle like that on June 10, 1957, such parties do not get the chance to form governments at Ottawa.

All of which makes it extremely important to the "new party," the labor-farmer-CCF coalition which is being organized by the Canadian Labor Congress and the CCF, to win the support of the Quebec "syndicates" in the Canadian and Catholic Confederation of Labor.

The CCCL has about 90,000 members. It is not affiliated with the CLC, although negotiations aimed at such affiliation have been under way for a year. The CCCL could remain separate and still support the labor-farmer-CCF party. It would seem, however, that this support would be more likely and more effective if the CCCL were to amalgamate with the CLC.

The two objectives are being approached separately. While the CLC and the CCCL talk amalgamation, a sub-committee of the joint CLC-CCF political action committee is seeking a declaration of support from the CCCL.

There are, of course, unions in Quebec affiliated with the CLC but not with the CCCL. If the "new party" were to be endorsed by both the CCCL and the Quebec unions, then for the first time political socialism might gain a foothold in Quebec.

The unanimous decision of the CCF national convention to work with the CLC towards the formation of the new party will not bear fruit quickly. Most of the next two years will be taken up in soliciting support among unions, farm organizations and individuals, and in seeking solutions to problems of ideological approach and party mechanics.

For one thing, will it be a new CCF with a new name on a broader base? Or will it be a Labor Party, even if not called such, with the CCF as part of its base?

If Stanley Knowles becomes its first leader, as many expect, formidable difficulties should not be perpetuated in rivalry for ascendancy in the new party as between the CLC and the CCF. Knowles is both an eminent parliamentarian and deputy leader of the CCF. He is also a member of the International Typographical Union of long standing, and executive vice-president of the CLC.

The CLC-CCF aim is to supplant and if possible destroy the Liberal Party; to restore the two-party system with a socialist labor-farmer party as the only alternative to Conservatism. If the new party could count on the votes of the 1,150,000 CLC members, the 90,000 CCCL members, the farm unions' members and the wives of these trade and farm union members, this country might have a socialist government in 1962.

But to achieve that result the new party will need much greater vote appeal than the CCF ever had.

The Packsack

OF GREGORY CLARK

THE merganser, also known as fish duck and sawbill, is a familiar sight on most Canadian lakes and ponds at this time of year as the female swims along at the head of a regular little platoon of anywhere from ten to fifteen ducklings.

Boys in outboards enjoy chasing these families, to see them scuttling furiously over the water. They are not too welcome around summer resort beaches, as they are accused of being carriers of a very nasty parasite, a liver fluke, called ciraria, which can create unpleasant sores on human skin.

We have had a family around our place the past few weeks, and a day or two ago I surprised them sunning on a rock at the water's edge. As they took off I saw that the mother duck had a clam shell clamped firmly on the tip of her bill. Apparently in feeding she had stuck her bill between the halves of a clam, which had promptly snapped shut.

The poor creature looked ruffled and confused. With my glasses, I watched her for some time. She tried to pry or bang the clam loose on rocks, but to no avail. The following day, she still had the clam and was looking weakened and exhausted. Even her ten young had lost much of their zip when I approached them. Here was a domestic tragedy indeed. Today, however, I see the old lady has got rid of the clam at last, and they are all busy practising underwater exercises, mama demonstrating.

Too Many Laws

THOSE two flourishing enterprises of democracy, bingo and book-making, should both be legalized, in the opinion of Ontario's Labor Minister Charles Daley. Many may agree. As Mr. Daley said, it is nonsense to condone only "casual" bingo.

And "bookies," Mr. Daley said, should be legalized "so we know who they are." His audience of policemen may have smiled, since any bookie is likely to be known to police about as soon as he opens up shop.

But the two cases did illustrate Mr. Daley's basic comment: "... Too many laws are being passed. ... I think we interfere too much with the general public." Many will again agree, with the important distinction: laws protecting society against violence and dishonesty restrict the minority to benefit the majority. Laws in such fields as behavior and business often work the other way around, restricting the majority to benefit or appease the minority.

Economic Progress

British Aid In Mid-East

SINCE the middle of the 19th century the United Kingdom and Middle East countries have derived substantial mutual benefit in fostering economic advance in the area. Two aspects, the development of oil resources and the harnessing of rivers, are of outstanding significance, but the joint effort has taken many other forms—including technical aid and advice, civil engineering works, building services, transport facilities and locust control.

British consultants, engineers and contractors have planned and built most of the dams and barrages that conserve the Nile waters for the irrigation of Egypt, and the irrigation and flood protection works that contain and regulate the Tigris and Euphrates rivers in Iraq.

British participation in the Middle East oil industry is concentrated in Iraq, Iran, Kuwait and Qatar (one of the Persian Gulf states). In Iraq, British oil companies found oil as long ago as 1908, and in Iraq development started in 1925. In the Kuwait field there was one of the biggest discoveries of oil ever made, and commercial production of oil began in 1945.

These large-scale investments in oil, although involving considerable political and economic hazards, have brought great rewards to both the producing companies (and indeed to consuming countries in general) and the oil states. In Iraq, where British and British-Dutch interests hold nearly 50 per cent in the producing companies, the country's general development program is geared to oil revenues—nearly £75,000,000 in 1955 and about £90,000,000 in 1957.

These revenues have made possible the building of vital projects such as the £16,500,000 Wadi Tharthar reservoir, which are transforming the country's economic structure. They would not, however, be possible without heavy investments by the oil companies; for example, the £41,000,000 pipeline to Banias on the Mediterranean.

Kuwait's annual oil royalties, which now exceed £100,000,000, finance a large state development program which has been in operation for several years. In Iran the international consortium, in which the British Petroleum Company has a 40 per cent share, produced about £76,000,000 in 1957 and is expected to meet about three-fifths of the cost of Iran's seven-year development program.

Some Middle East countries possess no oil, nor revenues from the transit of oil, and are seriously deficient in other resources. The United Kingdom government has in recent years provided substantial assistance to two of these countries—Jordan and Libya—for economic development. Jordan has received about £7,500,000, excluding military and budgetary assistance; and under the Anglo-Libyan Treaty of 1953 Libya has received £1,000,000 a year for development purposes, nearly 90 per cent of the funds available to the development organization, and £2,750,000 (since increased to over £3,000,000) to meet budget expenditure. In total, about £19,500,000 in economic aid has been provided to Libya over a five-year period.

United Kingdom business firms have been active for many years in the Middle East. British banks, for example, have been responsible for developing a network of banking services throughout the region and providing credit facilities. The British cotton industry has sponsored the expansion of cotton growing and the Sudan has become the second largest supplier of raw cotton to the British market.

British consulting engineers were, at the beginning of 1958, responsible for the design and supervision of works in Iraq with an estimated value of over £90,000,000. The recently-formed Middle East Industrial Projects Corporation to promote economic expansion in the area includes 14 leading United Kingdom industrial and banking concerns.

One of the most urgent tasks in the area for the raising of living standards and economic well-being is a greatly-increased supply of trained technicians, and provision of expert advice. Through the British Middle East Development Division, the United Kingdom government for several years has been making available free of charge the services of experts and, when requested, undertaking surveys of, and providing advice on development projects.

The work of the United Nations technical assistance program in the Middle East has been growing steadily and Britain, in terms of experts and training facilities provided, is the largest contributor. More recently, under the Baghdad Pact, the United Kingdom is assisting in other forms of technical training—notably in the creation of a nuclear centre at Baghdad, the only one in the Middle East, for which it has provided equipment and technical assistance.

British interest in closer trade relations with the Middle East was underlined by the formation early in 1958 of an advisory council on Middle East trade under the chairmanship of the minister of state at the board of trade, who made a tour of part of the area in May. In 1957 the United Kingdom imported £211,800,000 worth of goods—mainly petroleum from the Middle East—and exported goods totalling £154,000,000.

Letters to the Editor

Back to Barbarism

In an attempt to protect seed crops from small birds, the Experimental Farm at Saanichton has erected a high-voltage fence around a plot of ground used for seed growing purposes.

On Tuesday six members of the Victoria Natural History Society visited the farm and found several birds had been killed by electrocution, some found on the ground having had their feet burned off, and some hummingbirds and others, caught in the netting, being found to be dead.

The Dominion experimental farms are supposed to be in the forefront of all advanced agricultural procedures, but this device seems to me to be a reversion to barbarism. Also, I would say it is a failure and is uselessly killing birds.

These wires were erected last year, hundreds of useful small birds being killed. At that time the matter was taken up by the Audubon Society of Canada and the Victoria Natural History Society, resulting in a letter from the minister of agriculture of Dec. 3 last, which stated, "Birds now lighting on the perch wires receive a positive shock sufficient to frighten but not to kill them."

Undoubtedly this was written in good faith, but the superintendent at Saanichton evidently believes more drastic measures are necessary.

ALBERT R. DAVIDSON.

Traffic Signals Needed

Being an employee of the Royal Jubilee Hospital, I have observed daily for a long period the extremely hazardous traffic condition which exists at the intersection of Fort Street and Richmond Avenue, particularly during the morning and evening rush periods. It is practically impossible for cars on Richmond Avenue to cross Fort Street, and pedestrians also have an anxious time making this crossing in spite of a pedestrian lane.

It should be recalled that it took the death of a child to get a traffic signal light installed at the Oak Bay Avenue and Richmond Avenue intersection. Surely the authorities will not wait until someone is killed at Fort and Richmond before installing a traffic signal light at this very busy intersection.

(Mrs.) K. PORTER.

Boat Launching Ramp

Recent editorials and letters to the editors of our local newspapers regarding the installation of a boat launching ramp at the Cadboro-Gyro Park prove the necessity of clarification of the Gyro Club of Victoria's intention in this regard.

One major requirement of such a ramp is sufficient space to park the large number of automobiles and trailers that would be attracted to such facilities, and at present there is not sufficient parking space available.

Another problem confronting such a project is the length of ramp required in order that boats may be launched at low water, owing to the long run-out at low tide.

Undoubtedly the above problems may have an ultimate solution, but until such time as some control can be devised to protect swimmers in the immediate vicinity of such a boat launching ramp, it is not, and never has been, the intention of the Gyro Club of Victoria to instigate what we feel is a sorely needed requirement for the ever-increasing boating enthusiasts of this area.

GUY SHANKS.

President, Gyro Club of Victoria.

Couldn't Wait for Surgery

Boy Without Kidneys Too Tired to Live

BOSTON (UPI)—A young Swedish boy who had no kidneys died last night, his small body too exhausted to wait for the one-organ operation surgeons hoped would save his life. Nils-Olov Wisell, 10, of Motala, Sweden, lost his two-month fight for life as his father and mother stood by his bedside in the sealed room where he had lived since July 2. Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Wisell brought him to Peter Bent Brigham Hospital here after his only kidney was damaged in a playground accident and had to be removed. Famous kidney surgeons hoped to save his life by transplanting a kidney from his mother, an operation that has never succeeded except between identical twins.

In an unprecedented effort, more than 50 doctors joined forces on Nils' case. Dozens of persons from all over the world offered to donate their kidneys and hundreds more signed up for a special "standby" blood donor list.

Bill of Rights Soon Diefenbaker's Pledge

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Diefenbaker is ready to present to Parliament shortly a bill of rights he hopes will win passage before this session ends.

Mr. Diefenbaker has long been an advocate of such legislation which would outline the fundamental freedoms of Canadians. But his attempts in the past to have such legislation put on the books were opposed by the previous Liberal government on grounds it was unnecessary.

STILL HIS INTENTION

With this session apparently moving toward a close, a reporter asked Mr. Diefenbaker whether he still intends bringing his bill of rights before Parliament at this time.

"Absolutely," he said. "It's drafted. It's ready."

STILL SUPREME

By neatly outlining fundamental freedoms for Canadians, the bill would remove any excuse for inadvertent abrogation of an individual's rights by courts or governments. Parliament would still remain supreme, legally able to legislate whatever action it sees fit.

Mr. Diefenbaker last proposed a bill of rights in the Commons in 1955, when he was an Opposition member. Some of its main points:

1. Everyone has the right to life, liberty and security of person and all are equal before the law.

2. No person shall be subject to arbitrary arrest or detention or exile; any person arrested or detained must be promptly informed why and given fair hearing within a reasonable time or be released.

3. The right to habeas corpus of any person shall not be abridged, suspended or abrogated by Parliament.

4. Nothing in the bill shall abridge or exclude any rights or freedoms to which any person is otherwise entitled.

Population Total Nears 17,250,000

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada's population may reach the 17,250,000 mark by the end of this year if the current population trends continue.

The bureau of statistics Friday said Canada's people totaled an estimated 17,085,000 at July 1, an increase of 198,000 in the first half of this year.

Deserter Hid Out 14 Years in Terror

Frenchmen
Demand
Leniency

VERDUN, France (AP)—A United States Army court-martial today sentenced Wayne Powers, the soldier who hid out for 14 years with his French common-law wife, to 10 years' imprisonment after he pleaded guilty in a charge of wartime desertion.

The 37-year-old father of five children shook his bald head in disbelief as the sentence of the eight-man court was read.

GENERAL DECIDES

The sentence now goes to Brig. Gen. Robert J. Fleming, the area commander, who could reduce it.

Powers is a native of Chillicothe, Mo., but his home is the village of Mont d'Origny, near the Belgian border, where he lived with his five children and their French mother, Yvette Belesse.

DROVE TRUCK

Powers' strange tale started in 1944, when he was 23 and a private first class driving a truck with the army in France. His truck disappeared and he faced court-martial.

He escaped from the army stockade and went for help and solace to Yvette, whom he had met before. That was the beginning of a bizarre life which continued for 14 years. They settled down together without marrying.

WIFE IN MISSOURI

Powers had a wife in Missouri who later divorced him for desertion. Yvette went out to work in a textile mill to support their growing family. Powers stayed home to do the housework.

He ventured out only at night. When the doorbell rang, he ran to a cramped hiding place under a stairway with a false step.

CLOSE TRACK

The villagers saw almost nothing of Powers but kept close track of each new baby with an English name—Dorothy, Tilly, Douglas, Harry and Freddy.

The neighbors maintained a close-mouthed alliance in the presence of outsiders. But Powers was his own undoing last March.

PEEPING OUT

Local police, investigating a traffic accident in front of the house, noticed Powers peeping through the curtains. They questioned him as the only witness and his furtive behavior aroused suspicion.

Investigation turned up evidence that he was sought as a deserter.

After a radio appeal, 100,000 Frenchmen flooded the U.S. embassy in Paris with letters demanding a lenient judgment for a man who was faithful to one woman if not to the army.

Why did he do it? Powers said after his arrest: "I was afraid of the result if I turned myself over to the embassy. I was scared for the children. I was waiting for—I don't know exactly what."

"Why don't they leave him

Canada-Made Salk Vaccine Licking Polio

TORONTO (CP)—Poliovirus is being licked by Toronto-produced Salk vaccine, a five-man team of doctors reports in the current issue of the Canadian Medical Association Journal.

Their survey shows that for every case of the disease among vaccinated school children, there were seven cases in the non-vaccinated group.

Only one Ontario child who received the full three shots developed polio.

Lake Diversion Sets Precedent

WASHINGTON — Senator Richard L. Neuberger says the state department has confirmed to him that further diversion of Lake Michigan water by Chicago, over Canadian opposition, could constitute a precedent for similar action by Canada in the north-west.

Gravedigger Crushed By Falling Headstone

CHAMPAGNE en FONTAINE, France (Reuters)—A 66-year-old gravedigger, Marcelin Chaudette, was found dead in a new grave here—crushed by a new headstone that toppled into it while he was digging.

alone?" asked Yvette. "He's all right. He's so frightened, so very ready served 14 years in prison. I frightened."

'Fired on Hearsay'

OTTAWA (CP)—The case of a "disarmed Montreal cargo checker caused further repercussions in the Commons Friday.

Liberal J. W. Pickersgill said a "agriculture" department employee, Walter Mitchell, was fired on "hearsay."

"This man Mitchell has an activities and also in 'certain' an amugging activities." The minister said it was wrong to suggest, as the opposition had, that the case had anything to do with civil rights. He said he can't remember being informed "verbally" that Mitchell had been engaged and if he could he wouldn't tell in "very extensive" political Mr. Pickersgill.

Vancouver Island salmon fishing was generally good last month with some heavy catches being made.

Last year, if you recall, produced some of the best coho fishing in a decade during July and August and with the island swarming with holiday anglers, the sports catch was extremely good.

That it hasn't been as good this year is in large part due to the strike which tied up ferry service between the island and the mainland and caused a big drop in tourist traffic. Almost all up-island boathouses reported fewer boats out last month than for the same period last year. Another reason is that the latter part of last month, just when the up-island fishing was at its best of the year, brought quite a number of windy days which kept anglers ashore for lengthy periods.

And there isn't any doubt but that the prolonged heat wave made things tougher for the sports fishermen, keeping salmon well out from shore and deep down in cooler waters. Day after day frustrated sports fishermen found fishing on the sporty side although commercial trollers were doing well in the same area.

Comparing the daily reports in the King Fisherman Contest brings the conclusion that fishing in the Comox-Campbell River stretch and in Saanich Inlet has been at least as good this year as last. But it hasn't been quite as good in Victoria waters or off Sooke and has definitely been poorer in the Parksville-Qualicum area.

Just what this month will bring can only be a guess but taking the island as a whole, fishing is spotty at the moment and will likely stay that way until we get rain or cooler weather or both.

During the past few days, Saanich Inlet anglers have been tangling with some big springs, probably taking a circuitous route to Cowichan Bay, where the spawning-bound springs showed up in numbers for the first time this week.

Cowichan Bay fishing has been good for the past two or three mornings and should continue to improve with morning tide conditions gradually getting better. It's only a guess but the peak period at Cowichan Bay should be between the 8th and 19th of the month.

Up-island, fishing is still good off Campbell River and while only a few of the big fellows have been boated so far, they are reported in the tye pool at the mouth of the river. Anglers, however, are still getting fine catches of coho and spring to 20 pounds.

Fishing is from fair to good between Comox and Shelter Bay, varying from day to day but with diligent anglers almost invariably bringing in fish.

For those who like their salmon on the large side, there could be action any day in Comox Bay or the Alberni Canal, where the big ones are about due. It's probably a few days early for the first ones, the best time fishing usually being between August 10 and September 10. Comox Bay tides are good August 15, 16 and 17 and a trip then might just be worth while.

And, the first good report for some time was received this week from Qualicum Beach, where anglers have been picking up coho in encouraging numbers for the past few days.

Cowichan Bay Salmon Club will hold its annual junior derby tomorrow with a bicycle as first prize. Second prize will be a fishing tackle kit and Jim Green has donated a reel which will be given away as a hidden-weight prize.

The derby is open to all young anglers not more than 16 years of age. Entry fee is 50 cents but it is not necessary to be a member of the CBSC. The derby will start at dawn and all fish must be in the hands of the official weighmaster at the head of the government wharf by 12:30 p.m. Usual derby rules, including the use of rod and reel, will be in effect.

And to wind it up, a reminder that the annual Chinook Club derby is set for tomorrow in Saanich Inlet with fishing between daylight and 2 p.m.

Needed to compete in membership in both the Chinook Club and the Victoria-Saanich Inlet Anglers' Association and a derby ticket, which can be procured at city sporting goods store or Inlet boathouses.

Usual derby rules will prevail and officials announced yesterday that members and non-members may fish from the same boat if desired. There will be prizes for the five largest fish and 14 hidden-weight prizes but the big prize is to be the champion of the button-winning members of the VSIAA.

Olmstead Sentenced to Jail— Then Released on $1,000 Bail

National Hockey League star Bert Olmstead was released on $1,000 bail Friday in Vancouver less than five hours after he was sentenced to six months in jail for what the magistrate termed "a brutal assault" on a West Vancouver mining executive.

Chief Justice A. C. DesBrisay granted the bail pending the hearing of an appeal by Olmstead in Victoria Sept. 9. Olmstead, recently traded to Toronto Maple Leafs, will return to his farm in Sceptre, Sask.

Magistrate James Bartman found Olmstead made the assault on Ralph Rooney of West Vancouver, who was beaten "beyond recognition" at a trap-shooting club banquet June 28 in Vancouver.

Olmstead testified during his trial that guests were bidding for trapshooters in a Calcutta auction at the Canadian championships, and that he felt Rooney was bidding for a syndicate.

Olmstead claimed that Rooney, 32, who weighs 135 pounds, struck him first in the ensuing argument and knocked him down. Rooney countered with a charge that Olmstead beat him "50 times" over the head and neck. He said his jaw and gums were "a mass of pulp" after the assault.

In a Calcutta auction, a prize pool is formed and guests or club members bid for competitors, each "buying" an entrant. The buyer who has the winning entrant takes the pool.

key to keep your temper at all times and not start fights, but if anybody swings at you, you retaliate."

The magistrate termed the evidence "most aggravating."

KEN VENTURI, golf's fifth leading money-winner for 1958 although he hasn't won a tournament in three months, shot a five-under-par 65 yesterday to set the pace in the opening round of the $50,000 Glen Eagles open golf tournament.

His round gave him a one-stroke lead over Bob Harris and Joe Conrad. Al Balding of Toronto shot a 69 for 10th place.

Ham Richardson, Barry Mackay, Whitney Reed and Sammy Klammalva were named yesterday as members of the U.S. Davis Cup tennis team which will meet Argentina in the American zone final Aug. 15-17 at Rye, N.Y.

Perry T. Jones is non-playing captain. Italy and Great Britain split two singles matches yesterday in European zone Davis Cup play. The bill that would have shaken professional sports loose from anti-trust law restrictions was tabled for this session of Congress in Washington yesterday.

Tom Courtenay, Olympic champion and world record-holder, was named in Warsaw yesterday that he is retiring from track competition at the end of this season.

YAMA BAHAMA of the British West Indies withstood two first-round knockdowns and came back to score a 10-round unanimous decision over tiring Joe Miceil of New York in a nationally televised middleweight bout from Syracuse, last night.

The problem of raising money for San Francisco Giants' new stadium was solved yesterday. The club received a cheque for $5,000,000 from the city as well as two other $1,000,000 cheques.

Russie Ravand, general manager of the Dodgers, said yesterday it was a mistake to bring the club's veteran players to Los Angeles, and indicated that there will be at least three newcomers in the regular lineup next season.

Nearest out-of-town runner-up was Dave Scott's Oak Bay team, which was fourth in the rink event with two wins. Rev. Joseph Jones of Victoria, beaten in singles play yesterday, was the Island entry of Col. S. Baskerville and Fred Brown lost in doubles.

All three winners compete in the G & W Canadian championships Aug. 25-27 in Victoria.

History repeated itself in the game, but this time the American League club hopes to write a different ending to last year's story, when they beat Prince George by an identical score, then lost to New Westminster in the final.

Bob Mabey has been named starting pitcher against Vancouver. Winner tonight goes into the divisional tournament.

Milwaukee Braves, held back all season by injuries which would have wrecked the pennant chances of most clubs, appear to be steadily pulling away in the National League pennant race which was virtually an eight-club affair only three weeks ago.

Veteran Lew Burdette flashed some of his 1957 form last night and the Braves moved two games ahead of the stubborn San Francisco Giants by scoring a 4-2 win in the first game of a four-game series which could practically knock the surprising Giants out of contention.

Burdette, who struck out eight, needed ninth-inning help from Don McMahon but was tough in the clutch as he managed to scatter 11 hits so effectively that the Giants got only one run with 10 of them.

The other was Orlando Cepeda's 20th home run. Moving along with the Braves and six and a half games behind, the resurgent Pittsburgh Pirates grabbed third place all to themselves by blanking the slumping St. Louis Cardinals, 2-0.

KLINE WINS 11TH Ronnie Kline, winning his fourth in a row and 11th of the season, and rookie Bob Mabey hooked up in a pitching battle which wasn't decided until the Pirates pushed over two runs in the eighth. The Cards benched the slumping Stan Musial in favor of Joe Cunningham, but it didn't make any difference.

Robin Roberts, back in old-time form, won his 200th major league game as Philadelphia Phillies bested Chicago Cubs, 3-1. It was the 11th win of the season and the sixth in his last seven decisions for Roberts, who gave up only three hits, one Dale Long's 13th home run.

Over in the American League, the New York Yankees, now the only club which has lost more games than it has won, extended their lead to 16½ games as Bob Turley blanked Chicago White Sox, 7-0.

It was Turley's fifth shutout and his 16th win in 20 decisions this season. Bill Skowron, batting in four runs with his ninth homer, a double single and sacrifice fly, led the Yanks at the plate.

Cleveland Indians boomed into third place, only a half game out of second spot, by knocking off the runner-up Boston Red Sox twice, 7-1 and 2-1, as veteran Cal McLish and rookie Hal Woodeshick both threw two hits off the delivery of Dick Sisler. One of them was Rocky Colavito's 23rd home run, which followed a walk to Mickey Vernon.

It was the sixth straight win for the revived Cleveland club.

For Lyle, understudy last year

EDMONTON (CP)—Sam Lyle stood among a small army of newcomers when he opened Edmonton Eskimos' training camp five weeks ago. Now, after his own weeding out drills, he can count himself as one of the few new faces still in camp.

He will be coaching a club that was built largely by Darrell Royal and Frank (Pop) Ivy, his predecessors. The key personnel of the 1957 squad—Jackie Parker, Johnny Bright, Normie Kwong, Rolfe Miles, and others—are still around. Only four of last year's 12 imports are missing.

When he took the reins from Ivy one of Lyle's goals was to find somebody to take over at quarterback, letting Parker move back into his right half-back spot.

Parker still there He tried Gene Calame from Oklahoma and Fred Meyers from Michigan State, Thursday. Calame got his walking papers. Now Lyle is talking of Meyers in terms of his skill as a half-back. Parker, it seems, will again be at quarter, with Canadian Don Getty in reserve.

Parker is among eight of 1957's 12 imports returning for another season.

With him again are fullback Bright, ends Bill Walker and Joe Mohr, tackle Roger Nelson, guard Art Walker and centre Kurt Burris. The eighth mile—has taken out citizenship, leaving room for a fifth new American.

Missing are Frank Anderson, crashing defensive end who probably will be replaced by Art Walker; halfback Earl Landley who is sitting out the year with a shoulder injury; halfback Ken Hall who left the Edmonton camp without an explanation; and Utah tackle Reed Henderson.

New imports still in town include Meyers; halfbacks Joe Bob Smith and Don Flynn from the University of Houston; and Oklahoma—Bill Brown; ends Tommy Pearson of Oklahoma State and Jim Letcavits of Kansas; tackles Tom Emerson, Ed Gray and Don Stiller, all from Oklahoma; and Georgia centre Don Stephenson.

Impressive Lions Outscore Ti-Cats

VANCOUVER—B.C. Lions surprised the Canadian football world at Empire Stadium last night by outscoring Hamilton Tiger-Cats, defending Grey Cup champions, in an exhibition game played before an enthusiastic crowd of 15,848 fans.

It was the first game of the season for the Ti-Cats and the second for the Lions, who lost to Calgary Stampeders by a single point last Saturday.

Last night's was an impressive victory for the Lions although the Hamilton club did considerable experimenting. The Ti-Cats' famed line play was matched by the Lions, who also displayed a varied attack when George Herring was calling the signals.

Herring, a star at little Mississippi Southern during his college years and in service football during his recently completed two-year Army hitch, left little doubt about who will quarterback the Lions this season.

A star against Calgary, Herring was the only B.C. quarterback who could move his club and he engineered both touchdown plays for his club.

Ti-Cats went into an early lead, Fran Rogel, veteran National Football League star who replaced Cookie Gilchrist at fullback, plunging over 355 to complete a march which started on the Hamilton 29-yard line. Steve Oneschuk converted.

But the Lions came right back with a touchdown of their own. Bill Britton, a fine-looking rookie fullback from the University of Western Ontario, plunging the last yard. The touchdown was set up when Jerry James, the giant hold-over end who has been in coach Clem Crowe's doghouse this season for reporting many pounds overweight, made a fine catch of a pass from Herring.

The convert attempt was missed but the Lions took the lead in the second quarter when a penalty for rough play led to their second major score.

It gave them a first down 24 yards out and although they lost ground on the first play from there, Herring came up with a pass to Tom Bingham which gained 17 yards and put the ball on the 17-yard line. The Lions made the first down, then veteran By Bailey took a hand-off from Herring for a brilliant 13-run yard to pay dirt. Once more the Lions missed the convert.

STOPPED BY FUMBLE Bernie Faloney was sent in to replace newcomer Mickey Trimarki, from the University of Western Virginia, as Hamilton quarterback. The veteran hold-over engineered four straight first downs but a fumble stopped the Ti-Cats on the B.C. five-yard line.

Ti-Cats threatened again in the third quarter but a third-down try for necessary yards failed and the Lions took over. The Lions were then stopped 10 yards out but they kept the ball in Hamilton territory until Herring boomed a kick over the goal-line and James rouged Eddie Macon for a point which made the score 13-7.

Lions missed a big chance in the fourth quarter when Howie Schaefferberger dropped Herring's pass on the Hamilton 14. Herring booted the ball into the end zone for Lions' 14th point midway through the quarter.

Ti-Cats got to the B.C. 18 late in the game but Rick Kaser knocked down a Faloney pass in the end zone to end the threat.

Lions outgained the Ti-Cats, 183 yards to 117 on the ground but were outgained, 178 yards

City Little Leaguers In Provincial Final

VANCOUVER (Special)—Victoria's American League—all-stars advanced to the final of the provincial Little League baseball tournament here yesterday, squeezing past Prince George, 4-3, on a two-run homer by Harvey Stevenson.

The Island club, in the final of the second straight year, will meet Vancouver Optimists tonight at 8 in a sudden-death game for the title and the right to advance to divisional play.

Stevenson, who started on the mound for Victoria, was driven out in the third inning but stayed in the game and came through with his homer in the fifth inning to give his club a 4-1 lead.

LOSERS THREATEN Relief-pitcher Pete Jolly got into trouble in the bottom of the fifth as Prince George scrambled back for two runs before Gordie Strongman came in and cut off the rally.

In the end it was the superior defensive play of the Islanders that gave them their win. Outfield 7-4, the American League club came up with three double plays to hold off Prince George. Each time there were two or more runners on base.

Stevenson also had a double and Bob Moysie collected a double for the winners.

Three Fires 'No Joke'

Magistrate Henry Hall refused to believe a man's claim that three fires in a Blanshard Street building were set as a joke, and sentenced Joseph P. McDonough to a year in jail yesterday.

McDonough, 35, had told city police he had set three fires in an upper floor of 115 Blanshard at 1 a.m. Sunday to play a "prank" and to frighten McDonough's first offence and said he was taking that into consideration. McDonough was arrested after being seen to climb a pole and enter the building through a window, while carrying an inner tube. Damage was confined to charred walls and floors.

Alfred George Pearce, president of Green's A.N.R. Ltd., 662 Balmoral, paid $25 and $2.50 costs in city police court after his company was convicted of failing to file a 1957 income tax return. Daniel A. Bull, 18, RCN, was fined $15 for being a minor in possession of liquor.

Anti-Fluoride Group Silent During Trial

RED DEER, Alta. (CP)—This central Alberta city has become the first in the province to introduce fluorine into its drinking water. City officials said not one complaint has been registered at city hall after a silent trial period of one month.

Speeches last October by the citizen's fluoridation committee, a vigorous campaign, which saw active participation by city dentists and members of the medical profession, resulted in a narrow margin favoring the issue.

Back to Hawaii
In Three Years
Laureen's Vow

By ANNE SMELLIE

Who says going to school isn't rewarding?

Just arrived from a fabulous holiday in Hawaii is pert and pretty Victorian, Laureen Bennett.

The trip was a graduation present for both girls since Laureen, 17, graduated from Mount Douglas high school they could handle in 24 hours with a few extra stops.

At the Hotel Sidney they were met by a car and taken to the hotel. Laureen and Bernice were given a tour of the hotel and shown the rooms. They were then taken to the beach and given a tour of the beach.

At first Laureen was a bit nervous to perform at these sessions, but when she got to know the audience, it was a different story.

The girls were to perform at the first time of the season on the big stage of the hotel. They were given a tour of the hotel and shown the rooms. They were then taken to the beach and given a tour of the beach.

They were able to see the graveyard at Port Hardy because, as Canadians, they were not allowed to enter.

APPLAUDED

On the whole, however, Laureen said that even though the trip was a bit tiring, it was a very rewarding experience.

Most of the time, she was very happy and enjoyed the trip. She was able to see the graveyard at Port Hardy because, as Canadians, they were not allowed to enter.

Laureen and Bernice were given a tour of the hotel and shown the rooms. They were then taken to the beach and given a tour of the beach.

COLORFUL SELECTION

There was a colorful selection of food and drink at the hotel. The girls were able to see the graveyard at Port Hardy because, as Canadians, they were not allowed to enter.

Laureen and Bernice were given a tour of the hotel and shown the rooms. They were then taken to the beach and given a tour of the beach.

HOME PORT FOR TRIPPERS

Home port for the trippers was the Comstock apartment hotel near Wreck Beach, Honolulu.

From Honolulu, the girls came to the hotel and shown the rooms. They were then taken to the beach and given a tour of the beach.

DEARVILLE, Prince Rupert

A beautiful young singer, Danielle Dupre, put her foot out of her car to sing a few notes and a automobile came to a halt. In court the chauffeur of the other car admitted that he had seen her sing.

At the trial, Mr. Dupre told the judge that he was a professional singer and that he was not a professional driver. He was fined $100 for driving without a license.

Major Problem

No Gadget Yet
To Dry Tears

THE LATEST gadget to help people dry their tears is a small, portable, electric device that can be used anywhere. It is called the "Tear Drying Gadget" and it is designed to help people dry their tears quickly and painlessly. The gadget is made of plastic and has a small electric motor inside. It is used by holding it against the eye and turning it on. The motor creates a small vacuum that draws the tears away from the eye. The gadget is very easy to use and is a great help for people who have trouble drying their tears.

Champ Scores Home KO
But It Cost Him Title

BUENOS AIRES (WNS)—It is not fair for a boxing champion to spar with his own wife.

That is the decision of Argentina's boxing commission which has taken the South American middleweight title away from Andrew Seelipa because he knocked out Mrs. Seelipa and left the house without reviving her.

Seelipa's licence to fight has been revoked so that a man of such conduct will not be able to represent Argentina before the rest of the world.

Enjoy Fruits of Labor

By M. V. CHESNUT, FRHS

There is one field in which the home gardener holds a big advantage over the commercial grower, and that is in the harvesting of his fruit.

The commercial fruit grower, with a small army of pickers employed on a piecework basis, has to make a clean sweep of his trees, taking off ing, the apple is ready to eat. If not, lower it again gently and leave it for a few more days.

Figs must certainly be gathered selectively—a few at a time, as they ripen—because a fig is almost tasteless unless you leave it on the tree until it is ripe enough to show some cracks in the skin. And as soon as green figs. This is the way figs ripen in a regular succession, a few at a time—once they start to mature.

Peaches need a bit of protection from the birds too, but the plastic bag idea has never worked very well for me with this fruit—the peaches tend to become mildewed or mouldy in such close confinement. I suppose pickings, regardless of the state of ripeness. The amateur, with only a few trees to worry about, can gather his fruit selectively, only a few at a time, just as each one reaches its peak of sun-ripened flavor.

This selective picking is particularly important in the case of early apples. These earlies are poor keepers, and as they would only go bad if you tried to store them for any length of time, there isn't much point in picking them until they are ready to eat.

The test for ripeness is quite simple—just lift the apple on the flat of your hand, with no pressure from fingers or thumb. If the stem parts of its own accord, without any pull-the wasps come swarming around, so you have a very narrow margin of time in which to pick each fig at its luscious best.

It is, rather, a good idea to protect the most forward of the figs by covering them with little plastic bags, tying the mouth of the bag around the stem with a bit of Twine—those green fibre tapes used for staking. This sounds like a big job, but actually you need to protect only a few figs at a time, selecting the ones whose skins are turning shiny.

The plastic bags need to stay on for only a few days, until the cracks appear. Then, as you harvest your dead-ripe fruit, the bags are transferred to the next small batch of shiny the trick, although I have never tried this.

One stunt which has worked well for me, though, is to use a piece of shiny aluminum foil, or lead foil from a package of tea, or even tinfoil from cigarettes—Fashion—the foil into a shallow cone to cover and shield the upper half of the peach to be protected, extending well out over the edge of the fruit.

I picked up this trick from a Hungarian refugee who had grown prize-winning peaches in his native village, and while I don't understand just why this shiny "lamp shade" over the peach discourages the attentions of birds and wasps, it has given me excellent control.

Paar's Wild, Wonderful Year

Jack Paar has reached his majority, the first anniversary of his show, something which seemed hardly possible for a while. It's been a wild year, all right, with feuds and fights and threatened lawsuits and, in the intervals, some pretty wonderful and unusual television.

We should all cherish Paar because he may be the last of a particular type on television. He is, for one thing, live—and we seem to be reaching the end of the line in that regard. When you see a frown of annoyance pass over his face, when his voice starts to crack and come apart entirely, as it did repeatedly on a special show from Cuba the other night, we know these things are happening in front of our eyes.

The crack in the voice is not edited; it hasn't been dubbed in or dubbed out. It's right there and that adds a quality of excitement which is getting rare, very rare. (The ultimate aim of TV is to have nothing except a synthetic cracked voice, synthetic frowns, and synthetic excitement—taped, re-recorded and guaranteed to put us all to sleep.)

Paar's show from Cuba, for example, had that precious unexpected quality. It wasn't a smooth show, goodness knows, but it seemed to be a television show. "If you'll only not think of it as a show," he said in his strained voice at the outset. "Think of it only as international bad relations. We may have to give Cuba back to Spain. If you know how hard we worked. We have tried so hard to be misunderstood."

"That isn't even very good English. The bit about giving it back to Spain is hardly good diplomacy and if it had been submitted to the censors, would have been edited out. It suggested confusion of which there was a great deal. It suggested exasperation on the part of Paar and others and there was a good deal of that."

And yet, it is a live statement; it communicated the feeling of a bunch of entertainers dumped into Cuba, far from home, making out the best way they could.

The best Paar nights have been the untypical ones. If there have ever been typical ones, I remember the night a Paar show opened with the comic showing us that crazy box. He pressed a switch, the cover opened and a sinister little arm came out of the box, turned off the switch and went back inside. Crazy, man, crazy."

I remember Milt Kamen arguing that Wyoming does not exist very persuasively, too. Remember the fish that run around the floor and swallow each other? I recall with great affection Peter Ustinov's anecdotes which are the best anecdotes of their kind I have ever heard—and, in their way, perfect television.

Elvis Threatens to Act

HOLLYWOOD (NANA) — Help! When Elvis Presley leaves the army in about 18 months, he'll star in a dramatic film, with no singing. That's the report now, I'm sure, and hope, Elvis will change his mind. Although he does some pretty good acting in "King Creole."

Eighty-year-old Finlay Currie—Peter in "Qua Vadis"—is growing his white hair shoulder-length for a role in the Metro epic, Currie will also play King David in the Tyrore Power-Gins Lolobrigida "Solomon and Sheba."

Anita Ekberg meant it, about no partings she can possibly help from husband

Anthony Stern. Having worked together in Europe, they are now preparing a nightclub act in which they hope to tour the better bistros in America. She reckons that if Zsa Zsa can do it, so can they.

Orson Welles kept daughter Rebecca waiting a day in London before he turned up to take her with him, to Paris for a vacation. Ditto Prince Aly Khan who was due to pick up his daughter by Rita Hayworth, for a holiday on the Riviera. While Rita vacations with her current mate, producer Jim Hill.

Producer Harry Joe Brown told them in London that but for the late Robert Donat's asthma, Errol Flynn might never have been discovered for movies. Donat was scheduled for "Captain Blood" in 1935 but had to bow out because of the illness that finally took his life. At the time, Brown was using Flynn in small roles for $75 a week. The Warner executive and director, Mike Curties, liked the looks of Errol, and presto—a new star was born.

Boris Karloff, who is 70 years old, has come back to live in his native England for the rest of his life. The man who frightened more people in the world than any other actor has bought a house near Douglas Fairbanks' home. I'm told that Boris is considering changing his name back to its original, Charles Pratt.

Sterling Hayden, still a "bachelor" in spite of marriage rumors, is living with his four children on his boat near Santa Barbara. When Sterling comes to town I'm going to nail him down for his children-raising formula. It should be interesting for bachelors of both sexes.

At the risk of heresy, it must be revealed that experts open certain 15-point hands with one-trump for the purpose of un-complicating their future bids. Often it will be a hand something like South's, though usually with a bit more body in the way of tens and nines. South's rebid over one spade is a problem if he chooses to open with one heart. One no-trump is too weak; two no-trump too strong; two diamonds conveys a picture of less balanced distribution.

However, the noteworthy feature of the hand occurred in the defence conducted by Mrs.

Bee Gale of Miami Beach, holding the West cards. She opened the nine of diamonds and East took the ace, returning the queen. South ducked this trick and East made the mistake of failing to continue because he was unwilling to give declarer two diamond tricks by another lead away from his jack. Instead, he shifted to the nine of hearts and South made the good guess of putting in the ace, suspecting that West had started with a good heart suit.

South cashed the king of spades and Mr. Gale made the good play of tossing the queen. She knew that South held only two spades and hoped that East might hold another heart to lead through. South continued spades and North's ten was won by East's jack. East didn't have another heart to lead and got out with a diamond. South won this trick with the ten and led the club queen. East allowed this to hold and South continued by leading the club deuce. He planned to finesse dummy's nine in order to try to force an entry to dummy—a play that would have succeeded except that West forestalled it by playing the ten of clubs! She knew South had only three clubs—the earlier bidding and play had marked him for four hearts, four diamonds and two spades—so the ten-spot had nothing to lose. It had a great deal to gain. East, killed dummy's king, North's spades never came home and declarer went down two tricks instead of making his contract.
